
NEHA DHOUNDIYAL

Hi there (:

My name is Neha Dhoundiyal. I'm interested in joining Your Design Team as an UX Designer because I've been a fan of using design approach to advance the human experience for years, and my experience can help your team improve upon your already great work.

Are you still with me on this cover letter?

I'm a full stack Designer with an experience of 4.11 years and enjoys effortless experiences and designing for products, websites and mobile applications and love anything that involves the creative process from concept through execution. I have experience providing workable solutions to the development teams and maintaining a seamless bridge between the design and development/Product/Business/CS teams for whelming outcomes under agile.

What I'm doing currently?

Working on design and user experience efforts for the Express KCS's customer front-end service products including MediaFerry and DigitalGig. Working closely with product strategy to set vision and direction for the future MediaFerry product.

Roles and responsibilities currently held:

- Responsible for planning and executing product experience, helping in defining the product vision.
- Participate in user research to guide product design decisions (usability testing, competitive analysis etc.)
- Collaborating on project briefs and writing user stories.
- Create flows, wireframes, prototypes, and design mockups as needed to effectively conceptualize and communicate detailed interaction behaviors.

- Help refine the architecture, user interface, product features, and end-to-end experience for new features/functionality.

Why I'm a good fit for your company?

My experience solving broad problems and turning them into simple solutions and effortless experiences is what makes me an ideal candidate for your company.
